RCHS principal: student performance is improving

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

'At-Risk Counselor' Catherine Grisaffi and Principal Stuart MacKay

Principal Stuart MacKay said he will respond at tomorrow's school board meeting to a controversy that has arisen about whether too many kids are failing at River City High School. The controversy started when an RCHS student who is a liaison to the school board told board members earlier this month that nearly half the kids at the school were getting an F.

A week later, board member David Westin took Washington Unified School District Superintendent Steve Lawrence to task, citing statistics showing that 37 percent of the school's student body was getting an F and saying anyone getting an F "would not go to a four-year university."

Principal MacKay last week answered the charges, telling the News-Ledger that the original charge was well-intended but "inaccurate." He said they appear to have come – without context – from an informal discussion he had with the student senate about low performance.

MacKay did not have the correct, corresponding statistics available for the interview. But he did have statistics showing how many students were failing the "core subjects" of English, math, science and social science since the 2003/2004 year. He said the school is showing a positive trend.

"There was a spike (in "F" grades) three years ago, from 2004 into 2005," said MacKay. "The 'F' results we have this year are vastly improved."

The statistics, said MacKay, showed a peak in percentage of students failing a core class during 2004-05 and the following year for most subjects and grade levels. The total number of "F" grades handed out in the first semester of this year was 1,279, compared to 1,503 in 2004. Some students earned more than one of those grades.

The peak appeared to have occurred when the school was in transition, without a permanent set of administrators.

"I could speculate and say that in the year the school had the interim principal, 2004-05, that might be a factor in the fall in achievement. I know that having the right people in the office and classroom is needed to cause the students to actually do their work. A lot of students here have admitted they've been lazy and haven't done the work."

MacKay also stressed that "about 30 percent of our students are getting A's and B's."

How does the school handle "at risk" students?

"When a student is in danger of failing, their teacher is expected to indicate they're in danger of failing. What I do know from speaking to parents is that some parents don't pay attention to grade reports. In the last week, I've had 30 student-parent conferences personally with students who are 'at risk.'"

MacKay has hired a private party to help work with the school's underachievers:

Council's longtime member is new vice mayor

BILL KRISTOFF

West Sacramento's city council last week unanimously voted to make councilman Bill Kristoff the new Mayor Pro Tem (vice mayor) for the next year, as councilman Oscar Villegas's term at the post expired. Kristoff was the only nomination, and the council's vote was unanimous.

Kristoff, a retired postal manager, has served on the city council since its inception in 1987. He has served as the city's mayor for three one-year terms in the years before the post became a separately-elected position.

Man on railroad tracks is hit & killed

Accident kills man who was possibly a transient -- but who is not immediately identified

An Amtrak train apparently hit and killed a pedestrian near the I-80 overpass in western West Sacramento early yesterday morning. The accident occurred at about 4:46 a.m. on Tuesday.

"The conductor heard the train hit something, and stopped," reported Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department. The conductor found a sleeping bag near the tracks, and a victim.

Sockman said the identity of the victim wasn't immediately determined. The man was pronounced dead at the scene.

"It was a white male adult of unknown age. We don't know if he was homeless, or whether he was walking along the tracks or laying down."

Trains were temporarily delayed after the accident. Investigators from the city police as well as Union Pacific Railroad and the Yolo County Coroner's Office responded to the scene.

A spokesperson for the coroner's office said yesterday afternoon that the man had not yet been identified, but "appeared to be a transient." The cause of death "will likely be multiple blunt-force trauma," she added.

Coroner's office tries to 'put a puzzle together' for each case

By Beth Gabor,
Yolo County Public Information Officer
& Davis High School Intern Chris Lester

With the emergence of crime investigation television shows such as "CSI" and "Law & Order," forensic science and investigation has garnered unprecedented attention. But what would it really be like to investigate deaths and conduct autopsies on a daily basis? Few know better than the men and women of the Yolo County Coroner's Section. Located under the auspices of the Sheriff's Department, the Coroner's office investigates all sudden, violent, or unusual deaths that occur in Yolo County.

Specifically, the Coroner's chief duty is to determine the cause and manner of death in homicide, suicide, accident, natural, and undetermined cases from scene investigation, examination of evidence, interviews, medical record review, toxicological analysis, forensic pathology examinations and autopsies. This process includes determining the manner of death, whether it be homicide, accident, suicide, natural, or undetermined, identifying the deceased through fingerprints, dental records, DNA and other records, establishing the manner of death, locating the next of kin and notifying them of the death, examining evidence, and securing the decedent's property. In addition, the Coroner's office is also responsible for issuing the certificate of death as well as testifying in court if needed.

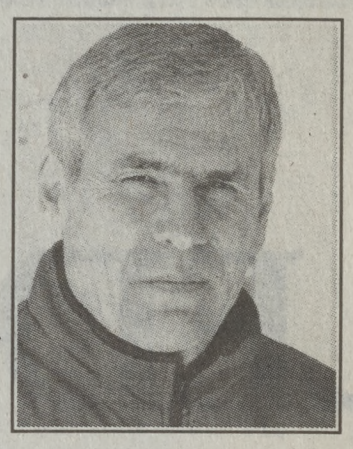
The Coroner's Section facilities, including a centralized office, morgue, and lab area, are located with the Yolo County Sheriff's Department on 2500 East Gibson Road in Woodland. Coroners have all the necessary resources and equipment needed to do their jobs, including two autopsy suites with a separate viewing room, full-body and dental x-ray equipment, a darkroom, a walk-in refrigerator, an ultra-low temperature deep freezer, and two evidence/property rooms.

These facilities, along with a staff that includes one Chief Deputy Coroner, four Deputy Coroners, one Records Clerk, and five Coroner Student Interns ensures that Yolo County consistently has one of the best coroner sections in the area. Investigators' backgrounds include Master and Bachelor Degrees in Biological Systems, Engineering, Psychology, Human Gross Anatomy, Forensic Science, Criminal Justice, Chemistry, and Microbiology. In addition to paid staff members, the Coroner's Office offers a student internship program. Originating in 1993, the program offers upper division medical students the opportunity to participate in an intensive, hands-on experience that spans multiple fields, from chemistry to psychology.

Chief Deputy Coroner Robert LaBrash explains working a death investigation this way: "It's similar to putting a puzzle together, but without the benefit of the picture on the box as a guide. One would start the puzzle by arranging all the edge pieces, then group similar colors together. Eventually, you have a fairly good idea of what the puzzle is about, enough to authoritatively describe the image. Some death investigations are easier, such as a Spongebob Squarepants puzzle I'd put together with my kids. Others are the thousand-piece puzzles that demand more time and attention. Regardless of the type of case, our philosophy is the same; every death is a homicide until proven otherwise. That way you don't miss anything."

Hillary & Bill: who's the real president?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Someone asked me the other day how (for almost 20 years now) I manage to come up with something relatively new to write about every week in this column. And the answer of course is that I can't. But when I do find myself without a meaningful thought in my head, I simply thumb through the thousand or so columns I have already written with the goal being to hopefully find one that I would really like to see the light of day again. And since I am once again brain-dead this week, and since the Clintons are back in the daily news, here is a column from the early 90's which I still think is kinda cute, even if I can't seem to remember writing it:

"Is everyone here?" asked President Bill Clinton, his voice full of concern as he pulled out a chair and sat down at the head of a lengthy table.

His campaign manager, James Carville (the fast-talking adviser with the thick southern accent), quickly scanned the entire room, a sparsely decorated and little-used old White House basement office which once belonged to Colonel Oliver North back when he was busy hatching up schemes behind the back of President Ronald Reagan.

"I think almost everyone is here, Mr. President," announced Carville.

"Well, let's have a roll call anyway," ordered the obviously agitated president.

"Good idea," said Carville, nodding his head in agreement. He then looked down at his notes and hollered, "Gore!" There was no response. "I believe Al is still out in the hallway checking for asbestos," Carville informed the president, who nodded that he understood. "Tipper?" yelled Carville, continuing the roll call.

"You know Tipper won't come into a room until Al has cleared it for radon gas with that little gadget he carries around with him all the time," explained Hillary Rodham Clinton, the president's wife, who was seated next to Carville.

"And just how long is that going to take?" demanded the president.

"Just try to chill out, Bill, okay?" said Hillary to her husband. "And if this meeting is as important as you say it is, then we're probably better off without the Gores being here anyway. They never seem to understand that the ends always justify the means."

"Secretary of State Christopher?" continued Carville.

"He's still in Europe trying to start World War I all over again," explained Hillary sarcastically.

The president glared over at his wife and said, "My dear, I know we disagree on the Bosnia issue, but I'd appreciate it if you'd keep that opinion to yourself."

"Well, excu-u-u-use me!" replied Hillary, using her best Steve Martin impression.

"Come on you guys," pleased Carville, eager to keep yet another argument between Bill and Hillary from escalating.

"Okay, everyone out!" suddenly yelled the president. "Everyone but Hillary and Carville!"

"Do I have to go, too?" asked George Stephanopoulos, the president's press secretary. "I wanna stay. Awe, come on, please let me stay. Pretty please?"

"Okay, okay, George," said the president, "you can stay, but you gotta stop whining like that all the time. Just because you look like a little kid doesn't mean you have to keep acting like one."

"If he gets to stay," interjected Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, the highest ranking black American in the Clinton administration, "then I'm staying, too!"

"I want everyone out, Ron," said the president forcefully, "and that includes you."

"Jesse Jackson is going to be hearing about this," said Brown as Carville stood up and herded him out with all the others.

"Okay, now what's this all about, Mr. President?" asked Carville as he returned to the table which now only seated himself, Stephanopoulos, and the Clintons.

"Fisher is on to us," the president finally blurted out.

"Who?" asked Hillary, obviously confused.

"Some guy named Fisher who lives in a place called West Sacramento who thinks he's a journalist," explained the president. "He writes a stupid little column in his local newspaper -- he calls it `My Back Pages' or something silly like that."

"What in the world are you talking about?" demanded Hillary.

"I got a hand-written letter from him this morning," nervously continued the president. "Here, read it." He took eleven or twelve lengthy sheets of yellow legal paper out of his coat pocket and passed them to Carville.

"This isn't a letter," said Carville. "It's a damn book!"

"He's a little wordy," mumbled the president.

When everyone had finally finished reading the letter, they all looked over at the president, their mouths wide open.

"How in the world did he ever find out?" demanded Hillary.

"Well, he's on a local school board," explained the president, "and those people are always pretty sharp."

"The question now is, can we keep him quiet?" said Carville.

"This is absolutely amazing," interjected Stephanopoulos, looking down at the letter and shaking his head. "It's almost as if this Fisher guy was right there in the room with us during all of our early strategy meetings."

"Maybe we can buy him off?" suggested Carville. "Anyone living in a place called West Sacramento has got to have a price. Maybe if we just put him up in the Lincoln bedroom for a few nights he'll keep his mouth shut?"

"But the Lincoln bedroom is already rented out to hundreds of our campaign donors for at least the next year and a half," Hillary reminded everyone, "so that won't work."

"What about cold hard cash?" suggested the president. "I know where I can get my hands on...."

"Now you just hold it right there, Mr. President," interrupted Stephanopoulos. "That's exactly what Nixon told Halderman, and we certainly don't want to go down that road."

The president suddenly burst out in tears and Hillary quickly reached over and placed her arm lovingly around his shoulder.

"But if he goes public -- like he's threatening to do," sobbed the president, "then everyone is in the whole country is going to know that Hillary -- and not me -- is the real president."

"Now calm down, honey," said Hillary. "Everything is going to be okay."

"Bill," lectured Carville, "now you and I have both always known that it had to come out sooner or later. When Hillary first called me and suggested using you as a front to get her elected, I specifically sat you both down and told you we wouldn't be able to keep it a secret forever."

"I know, I know," cried the president, "but I love pretending to be the real president!" He bit his lower lip, placed his head on his wife's chest and sobbed uncontrollably.

"George," said Hillary, obviously in full control of the situation, "maybe you should take the president up to his room now while Carville and I try to figure out how to best deal with this latest crisis."

"Good idea, Mrs. President -- I mean Hillary," said Carville and he and George gently helped Mr. Clinton to his feet and escorted him to the door.

After Mr. Clinton had left the room, Carville returned to Hillary's side and asked, "Well, what do we do now, Mrs. President."

"We simply deny everything -- just like we always do," said Hillary confidently. "I mean, who's going to believe some nitwit in a place called West Sacramento? I bet he has a readership of about 12 people."

Carville smiled and nodded his head in agreement. "You're right, just like you always are, Mrs. President. But just in case, I think we should burn all the tapes."

FIRE REPORT

The West Sacramento Fire Department reports at least two serious incidents last week.

On January 9, firefighters responded after a hydraulic jack failed while a man was working on his truck on South River Road south of Linden Road. When the jack failed, the truck fell on top of the victim. Firefighters extricated him and found that he was not breathing and had a large laceration to his neck, but had a very low pulse.

They began CPR and transported him to the UCD Medical Center, where he was later announced to be in stable but serious condition.

Firefighters responded to a second alarm fire in Sacramento near 9th and S streets on January 11. West Sacramento firefighters assisted at the scene of a "fully involved" fire at an auto body shop for about 40 minutes.

Fees change for loads of trash, old electronics at Yolo landfill

The Yolo County Planning & Public Works Department, Division of Integrated Waste Management has announced adjustments to fees charged to customers disposing of unwanted materials at the Yolo County Central Landfill (YCCL) and Esparto Convenience Center (ECC). The new fee schedule, effective January 16, represents the first change in fees in ten years, and is expected to help the division provide better customer service, reduce illegal dumping and recover costs.

Customers of Yolo County disposal facilities will find that some fees have increased, some have been added and others have decreased. For example, to discourage illegal dumping, fees for microwave ovens have been eliminated, and bulky items such as sofas, large chairs and mattresses will be included in the flat fee rate and with no additional charge.

"By eliminating fees for items frequently found tossed along county roads, such as sofas and mattresses, we hope to encourage customers to instead bring these items to our disposal facilities rather than dumping them on our rural roads," said Deputy Director Linda Sinderson.

For other items fees were added to enhance customer service, while others were increased to assist in recovering costs based on weight, bulk and difficulty of handling. Televisions, computers and all electronic waste, as well as batteries, used oil, cardboard, paper, mixed beverage containers and other materials will continue to be accepted for free daily at YCCL, and all but residential paint and e-waste are accepted for free at ECC.

Some of the fee increases include flat fees for all vehicles. At YCCL, full-sized pickup and mini-pickup loads of waste will be raised from $12 to $15, and $10 to $12, respectively – still lower than other comparable facilities in the region. Flat fees for mini-pickups at ECC will be raised from $12 to $17.

Some of the new fees added include fees at YCCL for daily acceptance of business or commercial latex paint at $1, $4 and $20 per 1-quart, 1 and 5-gallon containers, respectively, and the issuance of certificates of destruction for $10.

Council 'retreat' continues; school board plans to buy portable units to support K-8 conversion

A special city council "retreat" meeting continues this morning after beginning yesterday. The session is meant to conduct a "facilitated" discussion of "a broad range of city matters, procedures, policies and functions."

This morning's meeting starts at 8 a.m. in Rooms 157/160 at the city hall galleria, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

The school board of the Washington Unified School District will meet Thursday evening (beginning with "closed session" shortly after 6 p.m.) at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

Agenda items include presentation of a "Teacher of the Year" award by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8762, acceptance of a $15,000 grant and matching money from the Cameron Foundation and Southport PTO for computer lab equipment at Southport Elementary School; approval of an interim facilities plan for K-8 programs; purchase of modular and portable buildings for K-8 instruction; and other items.

West Sacramento's redevelopment agency will host a public "open house" from 4-7 p.m. on Monday at city hall for interested people to learn about a project to "master plan" over 200 publicly-owned acres around Stone Lock, the barge canal and the Sacramento River in West Sacramento.

Visit the open house or call Traci Michel at 617-4535 for information.

Catherine Grisaffi, an at-risk counselor. Grisaffi has begun working with students in 9th and 10th grades who are getting less than a 1.5 grade point average.

"If we can turn these kids around in 9th and 10th grade," said MacKay, we won't have as much work to do in the higher grades on the back end."

"I've already seen a change in quite a few students," added Grisaffi. "I have a list of 9th and 10th graders with a GPA of 1.5 or below. I am contacting parents. We talk about the intervention, and make parents aware the GPA is low. We make them aware the students can go to summer school, or to after-school tutoring, and that we have a therapist who works through People Reaching Out. Parents love it that I called. Every single parent I have called has come in. They are thrilled."

The families and school work out a contract for better future performance – including, in some cases, daily or weekly grade checks by Grisaffi.

"Some of them have to see me daily," reported Grisaffi. "I'll stand in front of my office for the first 20 minutes before the bell rings. They'll come by and say, 'I'm just checking in.' The approach I take with the students is that I'm here to help them. The students in general are very, very positive."

MacKay added that the school is not, as one other rumor put it, planning to move its lowest-performing students to the district's alternative school, Yolo High.

"We start at a grade point average of 1.5 and target them for an interview," he said. "The interview is to help keep them here. Once we do it with those students, we will go to students who are below 2.0 or 2.5."

MacKay said he will have more hard information available on student performance when he talks to the school board at tomorrow's meeting.

The corn in corned beef dates back to a time when "corns," or kernels of coarse salt, were used to cure beef. No corn was actually involved in the process.

Ultimate Survivors

He had chills and fever and was missing work, something he couldn't afford to do. He didn't call the doctor. He called a friend.

The friend had some leftover antibiotics from a prescription given by a doctor earlier in the cold and flu season. The friend had taken a few of the pills, but when she started feeling better, she put the rest in the medicine cabinet.

He took some of her pills and began to feel better, too. A few weeks later, though, the infection was back, with a vengeance. This time it took more than one visit to the doctor — an extended treatment of heavy-duty medication and several weeks of downtime to get over it.

We're living in a world increasingly infested with what scientists have termed "super-bugs," bacteria that are resistant to the medicines that used to get rid of them.

It's impossible to tell from historical evidence exactly how much the ancient Chinese, Egyptians or Greeks understood about the healing properties of the molds and plants they used to treat infections — we know now that these substances contain antibiotic properties.

Ernest Duchesnes defined the antibiotic properties of something called Penicillium sp. back in 1897, but he didn't get much notice. The extraordinary power and potential of antibiotics didn't really burst onto the scene until Alexander Fleming picked up where Duchesnes left off in 1928, and the rest is history.

We had found our magic bullet and entered the brave new world of medical science that could end all disease. We relaxed.

Hardly had the need for sanitation, personal hygiene and personal responsibility for one's own health become standard than we found a way to get around all that.

Get sick, take a pill, feel better.

Today, our hospitals are deadly places. You go there with a relatively minor complaint and come home damaged by some horrific infection.

Like vaccines, which give you a little of a disease to help you develop resistance to it, antibiotics have been used in a fashion that has actually helped the infectious germ develop resistance. Too often, antibiotics have been inappropriately prescribed or we have failed to take enough to actually wipe out the pest — effectively inoculating various bacteria against the cure.

In the 1940s and '50s, staph infections could be successfully treated with penicillin. Nowadays, almost all strains of that infection are effectively resistant, leaving only a narrow selection of drugs that are actually useful to treat it.

In our hospitals, day cares and nursing homes, along with the most vulnerable of our community, live the most deadly infectious bacteria. And now, according to a recent federal study, those super-bugs are expanding into the community, so that as many of us die annually from staph infections as from another arch menace, the AIDS virus.

We want to survive, right enough, but we are lax in the practice of good health like diet, personal hygiene, rest, quarantine and wise use of medication.

Germs, on the other hand, are not subject to the human proclivities of laziness, apathy, carelessness or stupidity.

That's what makes them the ultimate survivors.

Strange BUT TRUE

• Civil War historians say that during the war between the states, 10 percent to 20 percent of the soldiers were under the legal enlistment age of 18. In the Union Army alone, there were 800 15-year-olds, 320 14-year-olds and 127 13-year-olds.

• You might be surprised — as I was — to learn that an early version of the automatic dishwasher was available in 1889.

• Unless you're from the area, you've probably never heard of Laurel, Miss. If you are from the area, though, you may have heard of the small town, if for no other reason than the fact that Laurel is the home of the national anvil-shooting contest. In this annual event, no guns are used — although gunpowder plays a large role in the festivities. Here's how it works: two pounds of gunpowder is placed in a hollow space in the bottom of a 100-pound antique steel anvil. Another antique anvil of the same size and makeup is placed on top of the first anvil, and then the gunpowder is lit. The person who lit the gunpowder then runs flat-out to get out of the 300-foot danger zone, and spectators watch to see how high the second anvil goes.

THE YOLO INDEPENDENT FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 27,

and music were enjoyed, and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Vera Painter, who has been ill at the Sisters' Hospital, has returned to her home in Washington.

A. G. Brietzke and family were visitors in Stockton last Monday at the home of friends.

William Brenning and family, formerly of Long Beach, have moved to Washington, where they will make their home.

A. M. Cameron went to Chico for the week-end on business.

Miss Pearl Moser and Miss Sallie Russell motored to Placerville, where they spent the week-end visiting friends.

Charles Martinelli of St. Helena was a week-end visitor in Washington.

Mrs. A. M. Cameron and Mrs. Fred Moser motored Sunday to Natomas to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Stumbo.

"Hip-at-Home" is the aggregation of talent made up of the boys and girls of Washington who will entertain in the Town Hall tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at a matinee, and Saturday evening for the grown-ups. Among the entertainers are some clever youngsters who have been practicing for some time and they promise to give the best they have tomorrow evening.

Byron Williams and Julius Noyes were visitors yesterday in Stockton.

Blair Manchester was a week-end visitor in Roseville.

A St. Patrick's Day dance will be given at the Riverbank school Saturday evening, March 13th. The affair is being planned by the three teachers of the school. Refreshments will be served and music will be furnished by a Sacramento orchestra. The proceeds from the dance will be used in the purchase of playground equipment. This dance probably will be the first of a series of monthly dances for the same purpose.

Mrs. A. D. Gardner and daughter of Sonoma County are visiting at the home of Mrs. J. B. Lee.

FAMILY TROUBLE ENDS IN SHOOTING SCRAPE

Yesterday afternoon two pistol shots on the levee north of Rocky Point threw the neighborhood into a spasm of excitement.

Particularly were the workers in the Chinese laundry excited. They thought that another tong war had started and fled in all directions in quest of safety.

Nobody was hurt. Not a drop of blood was shed, and as Constable Buckingham was out of town no arrests were made.

The best the Independent could learn was from one of the participants, Wm. Brenning, who fired the shots in the direction of his brother-in-law, Wm. Roche.

Roche was not hurt, but sought the warrant, and Brenning claims he only fired in his direction without intent to injure.

Brenning and family are late arrivals from Long Beach. The Roche family came to visit at the Brenning home. A financial discussion ensued according to Brenning which wound up in Roche drawing a knife and Brenning a revolver. Roche ran out of the house and made his escape, but Brenning sent two shots after him.

FEW REFUSALS TO PLEDGE FOR GAS SUPPLY

Since Wednesday morning three employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company have been circulating pledges with the residents of Washington asking them to sign for a term of three years to use gas for household or other purposes.

Very few refusals have been met, but some ladies have asked the men to return after they consulted their husbands.

In nearly every case those making the request signed next day.

The cause of the pledge was explained in the last issue of the Independent. To build the pipe line from Sacramento an investment of $150,000 must be made. Without assurance of consumption, or a certain amount at least, the expenditure would not be warranted.

The three-year term pledge means that the signer will use gas for cooking or lighting during that period and if a home be vacant there will be no charge.

If used once by any housewife the lady would not be without gas during the summer months for twice the price asked for service.

Most likely the demand will be unanimous.

DRY LAW WILL BE TESTED MARCH 18th

Washington, Feb. 24.—Arguments on the government's motion to dismiss the original suit instituted by Rhode Island to test the constitutionality of the Federal Prohibition Constitutional Amendment will be heard in the Supreme Court on March 8. Assistant Attorney General Frierson and Solicitor General King will appear for the government.

While the suit will be heard on the motion to dismiss, all the issues involved will be argued, Frierson said today, and the entire case submitted upon its merits to the court.

WEST SACRAMENTO COMPANY UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF GLIDE RELEASING ITSELF FROM DEBT

SPLENDID SHOWING MADE AT STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING ON FEBRUARY 20TH AS SHOWN BY APPENDED STATEMENT

At the meeting of the stockholders of the West Sacramento Co. last Friday the report turned in by Manager J. H. Glide shows the company in a splendid financial condition, with assets sufficient to place the corporation on its feet in the very near future.

The company closed the year 1919 with a net profit of $12,080, after every deduction was made and claim paid, a showing that was taken at the stockholders meeting as very satisfactory. Former directors of the company were re-elected, with the exception of Fred W. Kiesel, who retired, his place being taken by Chas. W. Slack. President J. H. Glide and former officers were again chosen. The report to the stockholders' recited the stability of the work done since the Glide plan of reorganization became effective with the present management in 1914, total land sales having reached 4998 acres, leaving a total of 4794 acres yet to be sold. Sales expense, it was reported, has never exceeded 5 per cent.

Comment is made on the stabilization of the properties by location of industries in the West Sacramento Industrial Unit, the result of efforts in that direction being that six large corporations are now operating factories there, employing 400 people, with an actual investment of $905,000. The United States Fiber Products was located there in 1919, with an investment of $250,000.

An option, it was said, had been given the Virden Packing Company for a site for its $1,500,000 packing plant and an option as well has been given on the town site properties for $855,000.

Indebtedness was reduced during the year from $2,961,244 to $1,313,170, a decrease of $1,648,073, relieving the company of the payment of charges of $106,700.

News-Ledger Editorial

Bits & pieces

In the "signs of the times" department:

If you were around during the gas crisis of the '70s, this won't come as a surprise: the News-Ledger has noticed the increasing regularity of gasoline-siphoning theft in West Sacramento. The reports seem to come in from different parts of the city. It's tough to figure out exactly how often vehicles are being struck by gasoline thieves, but there is an upsurge, and it no doubt has something to do with the high cost of gas.

Sometimes, the crime doesn't get reported – either by folks who don't know their parked car was lightened a bit during the night, or by people who simply don't take the trouble to file a report even if they do suspect it.

Gas siphoning one more reason to park in the garage, and to keep an eye on your neighborhood's streets.

The city and county are reviewing their emergency preparedness after this month's major storm showed that emergency services dispatch systems were more vulnerable to power failures than previously thought. But from the News-Ledger's perspective, any emergency communications system which depends on relaying calls along land lines and cell phones in case of power failure is a flawed system. Surely, some of the same disasters which cause power failures could also threaten our telephone and cell phone networks.

Yolo's emergency services office, and local police and fire departments, should be ready to go with fully independent generator and radio systems in the event of a major emergency. That's not the case right now.

Nobody got hurt by the handful of lost 911 calls experienced locally during the storms that began January 4. But in a way, we got lucky: this particular kind of emergency didn't affect telephone lines the way a different kind of storm, flood or fire might have. Likewise, this storm tended to "keep the bad guys indoors" and reduce calls for police service. A different kind of emergency might not have been so gentle.

Letters to the Editor

'BRK' tagging aplenty

Regarding the article in the Sacramento Bee, dated January 20, 2008 (The Broderick Boys") I would like to invite Mr. Savala to inspect the access sidewalk that runs from Webster Street to Westacre Road near the Westacre underpass in West Sacramento. You will find "BRK" and "14" tagged aplenty. My wife has painted out graffiti with those tags under the underpass repeatedly for a few years now.

We congratulate and support the West Sacramento Police Department for implementing programs in the early stages in our school system to head off gang activity.

LEONARD TRIBOLI
West Sacramento

How will we pay for K-8?

It seems that the Superintendent of WUSD doesn't care what the voters think.

He is still planning to go full- steam ahead with the K-8 program and is hoping the voters will change their minds after the fact. The question is, if there was already money to pay for the K-8 conversion, why did they put Measure S on the ballot? If they don't have the money to complete the high school as planned, where are the millions coming from for the ongoing K-8 conversion?

Is money being diverted from the high school to pay for it? The Superintendent and the board knew from their taxpayer funded survey that the community did not support the K-8 conversion at a cost of 38 million dollars. So, their answer was to mislead the voters about what the Measure S money was really for. They tried to sell it as needed for technology and a new high school theater. Unfortunately for them, you the voters were too smart. Not one piece of Measure S literature revealed that 38 million dollars was earmarked for the K-8 conversion. "Voter deception" if I ever heard it.

I hope the district has a plan to move forward that includes a proposal to close the gap of the haves and have nots. What students are offered on the north end of town, compared to the programs offered to students on the south end, is criminal. The 700 students left at Golden State Middle School have been abandoned by the district. I guess that has been the plan all along. Now it will be even easier for the district to say that Golden State is a failure. Why aren't Golden State students worthy of the same computer classes, digital photography, robotics and scrapbooking opportunities as the students south of West Capitol Avenue? I thought it was the district's job to make sure every child in the district has an equal opportunity to acquire a quality education.

It looks like I was wrong.

Guest opinion:

Budget cuts threaten foster children, elderly & others

Diana Williams
Chief Deputy Director
Employment and Social Services
County of Yolo

The Governor is proposing significant budget cuts in an effort to alleviate a $14 billion deficit in both the current year and in next year's budgets. In social services alone, the Governor intends to cut $607.4 million statewide, and "save" another nearly $1 billion by delaying payments to counties. Since 2001, the state has already reduced funding to social services programs by almost $4.8 billion.

State cuts will result in additional, even larger reductions in federal funds. We receive federal dollars to match our state and county funds. When we cut programs we lose these dollars as well, essentially doubling the cuts to our funding. Doubling the budget cuts could lead to additional losses as the federal government imposes penalties on California for failure to meet federal requirements, making the impact of these budget cuts even more damaging.

Particularly egregious among these proposals is the Governor's reduction in the Adult Protective Services (APS) allocation. This program investigates reports of abuse and neglect against elderly or disabled adults. Our allocation this year is $230,125. The governor is proposing funding only $198,508. Yolo County's elderly population has increased 14 percent over the last seven years, yet the state has decreased funding by 22 percent.

The current year cuts affecting Yolo County families include a 10 percent reduction in aid payments to our county foster parents. These cuts will be devastating to our children as well as to all who provide shelter, nurturing and love to abused and neglected children. We already have a dire shortage of foster homes, and have struggled to keep approximately fifty homes here. But our need is significantly greater. Currently, over 460 of our children are placed in foster homes, most of them outside of our county. One of our biggest challenges in attracting

CRITIC'S CORNER

"The Bucket List"

Running time: 98 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Jack Nicholson. Morgan Freeman. One plays a curmudgeonly billionaire with an appetite for women and The Good Life. The other plays a sage, all-knowing, spiritual guide who teaches the other An Important Lesson About Family. Guess who plays which?

Yeah.

Freeman plays Carter Chambers, a mechanic dying of cancer. Through a totally ludicrous plot device, Chambers ends up sharing a hospital room with Ed Cole (Nicholson), the billionaire who owns the hospital.

The two begrudgingly begin to know each other. Eventually they decide leave the hospital to pursue their Bucket List, a list of things the two want to accomplish before they kick the bucket. Things like "Witness Something Majestic," "Kiss the Prettiest Girl in the World." Stuff like that.

They climb a pyramid in Egypt. They travel to the Himalayas. Race in a Shelby Cobra? Check.

Along the way, Morgan Freeman learns that Jack has an adult daughter he hasn't spoken to in decades. Grab the Kleenex, Bubba, cuz you know you'll be visitin' Niagara Falls by the end credits.

There are a few good moments where Jack Nicholson isn't playing Jack Nicholson. When he does show those few vulnerable moments, you're reminded of what a great actor he used to be. It's for those moments that I can recommend this film — not at full price, of course. Check it at a matinee. Or dollar movie.

Forever Young: My Friendship With John F. Kennedy Jr.
By William Sylvester Noonan
(Plume/Penguin, $15)
Reviewed by Cindy Elavsky

Like many Americans, I get a little wistful when I think about "the days of Camelot." No, I don't mean the times of Lancelot and King Arthur, but rather, the time of the Kennedys, when this political family seemed to rule the world. And of course, we will always associate John F. Kennedy Jr. with the image of a little boy in an overcoat and short pants saluting his father's casket as it rode past him.

Like his father, John Jr. had a short life, but unlike his father, the public never got to see "what could have been." Rumors swirled that near the end of his life at the young age of 38, John was finally considering taking a stab at politics — a route he had purposely avoided for much of his adult life.

However, a plane crash in stormy weather ended all hopes and aspirations for young John. William Noonan, who was one of John's best friends since they both spent summers as kids playing at the Kennedy compound in Hyannisport, Mass., gives readers a behind-the-scenes look at the man who would be king.

As adults, they grew even closer — they were in one another's weddings and were there for the births of many children. They were supposed to be together the night that John's private plane when down, with John, his wife and wife's sister on board.

Noonan's book is a wonderful biography of the young and dashing man we only thought we all knew. From their days of swimming and boating all summer long, through adulthood when wives, children and jobs took up most of their time, Noonan provides a deeply personal, first-hand account of America's favorite son.

Books reviewed in this column are available online or at your local bookstore.

by cindy elavsky

Q. What the heck? Because of the winter holidays I haven't been keeping up with my celebrity gossip, and now I hear that tons of couples have split and gotten together, all in the matter of weeks! Can you tell me who hooked up and who broke up? — A Reader, via e-mail

A. While I'm sure I will miss plenty, I'll try to give you a brief rundown of the turn-of-the-new-year happenings. First, the hook-ups: Black Eyed Peas singer Fergie became engaged to beau, actor Josh Duhamel. Jessica Alba is engaged to marry the father of her unborn child, Cash Warren. Former "Saturday Night Live" funnyman Jimmy Fallon married his long-term girlfriend Nancy Juvonen in the Caribbean. Eddie Murphy and Tracey Edmonds have married in a New Year's Day ceremony on a private island off Bora Bora in French Polynesia. Actress Katherine Heigl wed musician Josh Kelley on Dec. 23.

Now for the break-ups: Actor Brendan Fraser has split from his wife, Afton, after nine years of marriage. Rocker Eddie Van Halen and actress Valerie Bertinelli's divorce was finalized. Sean Penn and Robin Wright announced they are divorcing after 11 years of marriage. Australian singer Natalie Imbruglia announced she is separating from husband Daniel Johns, lead singer of the band Silver Chair. Actress Catherine Keener and actor Dermot Mulroney finalized their divorce after 17 years of marriage — an eternity by Tinseltown's standards.

Keep in mind that 2008 has only just begun!

Q. I remember an actor by the name of Ralph Foody who co-starred with Steven Seagal in the movie "Above the Law." I was wondering what he is doing now? — L.L.S., Arcadia, Fla.

A. Ralph, who after "Above the Law" went on to co-star in "Home Alone," "Home Alone 2," "Curly Sue" and "The Babe," passed away in 1999 from cancer. The Kentucky native was 71.

Q. I love watching reruns of "Everybody Loves Raymond." I remember one season they went to Italy and Robert had an Italian girlfriend. Can you tell me a little about the actress who played her and if she has done anything recently? — Pete in California

A. Alex Meneses is the beautiful actress in question. She starred as Robert's Italian love interest, Stefania, on six episodes of "Raymond" in 2000 during the fifth season. Since then, the 42-year-old actress and model has appeared in "Mind of Mencia," "CSI: Miami" and "Prison Break." She is currently filming the movie "Fire From Below" with Kevin Sorbo, aka Hercules.

Q. I love the Western comedy "Draw!" with Kirk Douglas and James Coburn, but I can't find it anywhere. Can you help? — Yvonne Y., Spring City, Tenn.

A. "Draw!" was released on VHS, but now is out of print. If you don't mind paying about 20 bucks for it, I found a few copies on eBay and Amazon.com.

2. Public Workshop Regarding Yarbrough General Plan Amendment, Southport Framework Plan Amendment, and Zone Change (GPA 04-02; REZ 04-02) (Hamilton)
This is a request to amend the General Plan, Southport Framework Plan, and zoning to modify the planned development of the Southwest Village. The area is currently planned for residential development ranging from low to high densities, neighborhood commercial, elementary school, open space, and parkland uses. The Project would amend the current land use designations to support development of approximately 3,004 residential units (including low-, medium-, and high-density offerings), an 18-hole golf course, a ±40-acre lake park, and community open-space areas. The Project includes changes to the General Plan and the Zoning Map (West Sacramento Municipal Code, Title 17) to generally increase residential densities that would represent an increase of approximately 1,800 residential units compared to what was considered by the Southport Framework Plan EIR. The Project also includes changes that would add recreational opportunities beyond what is currently planned. The project is located on ±711-acre site generally located south of Bevan Road, north of the City Limits, west of the Sacramento River, and east of the Deep Water Ship Channel. An Environmental Impact Report has been prepared on the project in compliance with CEQA Guidelines. APPLICANT: ASB Properties, 1107 Kentucky Street, Fairfield, CA 94533. OWNER: ASB Southport I LLC et al, c/o 1107 Kentucky Street, Fairfield, CA 94533.

3. Public Hearing Regarding Valley Slurry Seal Emultech Rail Spur Conditional Use Permit (CUP 07-09) (Bermudez)
The applicant is requesting a Conditional Use Permit to locate a 1,577-foot rail spur extension into the Valley Slurry Seal Emultech property located at 3785 Channel Drive (APNs 067-053-14, -15, -16, and -17). The proposed rail spur includes the construction of a single, 1,097-foot rail track that connects to the existing Union Pacific main line and 480-foot dual rail track rail spur. Both segments of rail track begin north of Channel Drive with the dual rail track terminating into the Valley Slurry Seal Emultech property. The dual track rail spur would allow VSS to stage eight rail cars per track. The property is zoned M-2 (Heavy Industrial). A Mitigated Negative Declaration has been prepared for the project in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act Guidelines. APPLICANT: Valley Slurry Seal Emultech, 3785 Channel Drive, West Sacramento, CA 95691. OWNER: Basic Resources Inc. P.O. Box 3191 Modesto, CA 95353.

4. Public Hearing Regarding Proposed Amendments to the Zoning Ordinance (White)
The City is proposing various amendments to the Zoning Ordinance related to the following: allow several uses in the M-1 or M-2 zone as either permitted or conditionally permitted uses; allow farmers' markets as a permitted accessory use in the C-1, C-2, CBD, PQP, RP and WF zones; delete the floor area ratio for two residential units in the R-2 zone; include changes to the existing sign ordinance to create a process for the formal delineation of existing signs that have historic and aesthetic value to the City; propose a new sign ordinance related to temporary offsite weekend directional signs, temporary on-site subdivision flags, and temporary onsite multi-unit residential flags and banners; amended setbacks for accessory structures; delete language regarding fence enclosures for swimming pools in residential zones which is currently addressed and enforced by the Building Code; allow modular buildings to be used for commercial day care facilities; and amended new definitions for farmers' markets, occupational medical outpatient clinics and outdoor sales. A Negative Declaration has been prepared on this item.

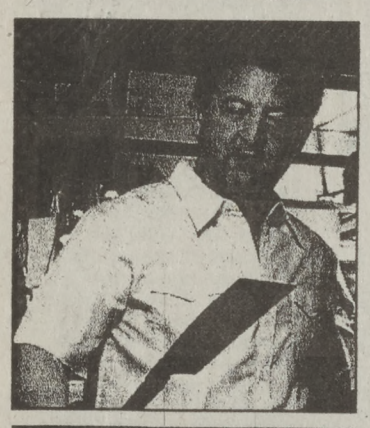
Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS
by Steven Austin



Luke Mangan

Is Australian cuisine in your future? Let's hope so! Luke Mangan is an internationally recognized celebrity chef and restaurateur and a well-known broadcast personality in his homeland of Australia. Mangan owns and operates three international restaurants, including his latest venture, South Food & Wine Bar in San Francisco, the first restaurant to introduce Australian cuisine to the Bay area.

When he's not in the kitchen, he can be seen on TV as host of "Appetizing Adventures with Luke Mangan," which airs Wednesday nights on Ultra HD on the Dish Network (channel 9478) and Cablevision's iO digital cable service (channel 729). In this series, Mangan embarks on an exotic culinary road trip throughout Asia to find new dishes to add to the menus of his restaurants. To learn more: www.ultrahd.tv and www.lukemangan.com Mention Australian food to Americans, and they think of Outback restaurants. Set us straight and tell us what it's really all about.

"To me, Australian cuisine combines some of the best food from all around the world, including Italian, French and Japanese, with everything from our local Aussie lamb and beef to barramunda, an Australian fish."

In your travels, was there a food or beverage item that required you to summon up some extra courage to try?

"We spent some time in Vietnam, and I was asked to drink snake wine, which tasted absolutely terrible! It's definitely not something I would recommend."

How challenging is the hiring process for your restaurants?

"I believe that if you fill the key management positions properly, the other positions will fall into place. Because I'm a firm supporter of promoting from within the company, my staff remains aware of the direction I'm taking the company. I also encourage them to monitor my Web site to gauge our customers and offer feedback on a daily basis."

For people who don't drink alcohol, is plain water always the best beverage to accompany a meal?

"If someone doesn't drink, I would suggest a simple carbonated water. I've found that the sweeter beverages don't mix very well."

CUTS: Governor's budget threatens Yolo services from p. 7

and retaining foster parents is that these families struggle to afford to care for the children in their homes. Cutting these payments even further is an unconscionable act that makes the shortage of safe, caring foster homes for abused and neglected children a critical issue.

A foster parent receives an average aid payment of $450 per month per child for care. In January, for the first time in many years, foster parents received a 5 percent increase in their aid payment. The Governor's proposal strips that away and takes an additional 5 percent. Boarding a dog in a kennel for a month costs more than the state pays parents to care for a foster child. The Governor is also proposing a cut in clothing allowances and specialized care payments (extra aid for children with special physical or behavioral needs) for foster children. Yolo County is able to give an annual clothing allowance of only $34 for preschool-aged children and $105 for school-aged children.

In addition to the Adult Protective Services and Foster Care cuts, the Governor proposes the following:

- 10 percent reduction in Medi-Cal provider rates – Very few physicians and dentists are able to take patients with Medi-Cal coverage because the rate of reimbursement is so low; rate cuts mean fewer providers.
- Elimination of certain Medi-Cal optional benefits for adults – Dental, audiology, optical, podiatry, psychology and speech therapy will be eliminated. The Governor's Budget Summary correctly states, "... elimination of these optional benefits will mean the loss of access to these services through the Medi-Cal program." Is this what we want for our elderly and disabled?
- Healthy Families Program (provides medical care to children) – Cuts include reducing rates, increasing premiums and co-pays, and instituting an annual cap on dental benefits.
- 18 percent reduction in In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS) – IHSS recipients are individuals who have disabilities but can still live in their own homes instead of nursing homes or other institutional care if they receive some assistance. The Governor's cut will significantly reduce the time allowed for that assistance. Ninety-five percent of Yolo County IHSS recipients will be affected by these cuts. The cuts not only affect our elderly and disabled, they also represent a loss of wages to caregivers, many of whom rely on this income while caring for a disabled child or family member.
- Eliminating the "Safety Net" for children by cutting the entire family off of CalWORKs aid for the parents' failure to meet the federal work participation requirements. Two out of three CalWORKs recipients are children.
- Suspending cost of living allowances (COLAs) for SSI/SSP recipients – Aid for these individuals (who are elderly, blind or disabled, and low income) is $795 monthly. These frailest of our citizens are less and less able to maintain a reasonable standard of living.

In addition to the human impact on the children, elderly and disabled these budget cuts will produce, there will be a significant impact on the county. The cuts shift the burden of services from the state to local government and unnecessarily penalize children and vulnerable adults. We hope that our legislative representatives and the legislature as a whole will take actions to preserve these essential services to our families.
